The Axe

By Frances Randolph

THE N. E. A. convention breezed happily in last week, looked over the city, gravely discussed the whys and wherefores of modern education, and breezed happily out, leaving many footprints in the sands around the Lincoln Memorial, and much money in the Washington hotels. To anyone interested in educational questions, there have been few more interesting weeks than this. The variety of subjects, to say nothing of the variety of opinions, was tremendous. In one thing there was a unanimity of opinion: That changes must be made in the educational system. The drawback being that the exact nature of the changes was different in the viewpoint of almost every delegate.

WILLIAM ALLEN WHITE heads a crusade against illiteracy which was started during this convention. Illiteracy must be wiped out, say the ardent crusaders. But John J. Tigert says that illiteracy is better than "sex novels, jazz and unsavory plays." Yours for the purity of the nation, John.

IN one matter there was no dissenting vote. The delegates declared themselves against any law prohibiting the teaching of evolution. This is interesting in the light of a recent Tennessee trial which made America the laughing stock of the whole world.

PROFESSOR BOLWELL will pull the veil from the world's worst poetic atrocities and hold them up to the merciless ridicule of the Enosinian Society at its next meeting. We fear the falling of some of our most cherished idols, but cannot refrain from looking forward with unhalting delight to the simultaneous fall of some of the stuff that has been palmed off on us for years as "good" poetry.

WE understand that the Junior Prom was a financial fiasco, at least as compared to the affair last year, but the real difference between this year's prom and last is that this year there was dancing.

GEORGE WASHINGTON lost the Junior debate to Bates College, before an audience of fifty or sixty people. Six hundred people were present at the Junior Prom. All of which forms an interesting side-light on the interests of the modern college.

WHILE the men's team last week lost its debate with Bates College, the girls won theirs against West Virginia University. Debate is one of the big things at the University, and deserves better support than it gets. It is the only activity available to University students which offers competition with schools not only of this country but of other nations. Bates College is the foremost debating institution in the country. Oxford and Cambridge hold the same place in England. We could not ask for better opponents, yet a football game with a fourth rate school draws better crowds.

VASSAR COLLEGE girls are now permitted to smoke. This will not make any appreciable difference in the prevalence of the habit. But it will take a lot of "kick" out of it.

TWO announcements made in Junior Week serve to reawaken talk of the Greater George Washington. President Lewis has inaugurated a campaign to raise funds for the third unit of the building plan, and the League of Masonic Clubs has promised to furnish the necessary hundred thousand dollars to open the School of Foreign Service next fall. Next year should be the greatest in the University's history.

MARKSMEN DEFEAT NAVY RIFLE SQUAD BY DECISIVE SCORE

George Washington Riflemen Triumph in Shoulder-to-Shoulder Match

SMITH AND RILEY HIGH

Saturday's Victory Brings Hatchette Team One Step Nearer I. R. A. Championship

The consistent marksmanship of Coach Stokes' men's rifle team was too much for the sharpshooters of the Naval Academy last Saturday, and the G. W. squadron shot a brilliant 1900-1830 win in a shoulder-to-shoulder match held at the Annapolis School. This win gives the Hatchette team a clean slate in the four I. R. A. matches for the Middle Atlantic Intercollegiate championship, and leaves only Maryland, William and Mary, and the University of Pennsylvania in their path.

Highly touted as the Navy team is, the Middies did not press the Buff and Blue marksmen at any stage of the match, and were clearly outclassed. This match was the only sporting event lost by the Naval Academy last Saturday, the Annapolis boys going to eight wins and one tie in matches which included wrestling, boxing, swimming, fencing, and gymnastics.

Baxter Smith and Thad Riley tied for honors in Saturday's match with a score of 385 apiece, although Smith outranked his teammate, while the best the Middies could muster was a 382.

Defeat Delaware and Lehigh.

In a telegraphic match shot last week against the University of Delaware the Buff and Blue marksmen defeated the Newark team by the decisive score of 1938 to 1805. Lehigh was the high man for G. W. with a target of 391 out of a possible 400.

In the third stage of the I. R. A. matches, Virginia Polytechnic Institute forfeited to the Stokesmen. Baxter Smith led his teammates in piling up 1934 points, against the Blackburg school, but the latter failed to turn in a score.

Concurrent with the Delaware match, G. W. team engaged in an outside match with Lehigh, emerging with the lion's share of a 3815 to 3719 score.

The University of Pennsylvania, to be met in the final match of the series, alone is expected to offer any serious opposition to the George Washington riflemen's drive for the championship. Maryland and William and Mary, the two remaining competitors, have little chance of defeating the Hatchet team, judging by their past performances.

MASONS RAISE FUND FOR SCHOOL OF DIPLOMACY

Hundred Thousand Dollars May Be Gotten In Few Months, Says Croissant

Professor DeWitt C. Croissant has just returned from New York where he attended a joint meeting of the Trustees of the Educational Foundation of the National League of Masonic Clubs and of the Directors of the League.

The Trustees are now actively engaged in raising a fund of $100,000, principally by one dollar subscriptions, with the purpose of endowing a professorship in foreign service in George Washington University. There is every prospect that the present goal will be reached in a few months.

This professorship will be a memorial to George Washington who was Master of Alexandria Lodge, and was also elected Grand Master of Virginia, but did not serve in the latter capacity because he became President of the United States before he was installed.

The Trustees of the Foundation hope that the response will justify them in attempting to establish a school in accordance with the ideas of George Washington in his will and other writings.

The educational control will be under the University, the desire of the Masons being to carry out the wishes of George Washington in an undenominational and non-political institution.

STAFF TO DANCE

Plans are being completed for a dance of the combined staffs of the University-Hatchet to be held March 12, probably in Corcoran Hall. The dance will probably be a closed affair, and is planned in order to bring the several branches of the staff together. A subscription of one dollar will be levied on members of the staff to meet the expenses.

THE VILLIAN LAUGHS

BATES GETS DEBATE DECISION OVER G. W.

Judges Give Visiting Team Unanimous Vote on Question of World Court

FEATURES JUNIOR WEEK

Bates Men Are Stars in Many Lines; Have Debated Oxford and Cambridge

Bates College Debating Team emerged victorious in its forensic contest with members of the George Washington University Debating Squad last Tuesday evening. The debate itself was the second of the George Washington schedule this season and was a feature of Junior Week. It also marks the first defeat which the men's team has encountered since it bowed before Cambridge University in the fall of 1924.

Contending for the adoption of the resolution, "That this House Favors the Entrance of the United States into the World Court," the Bates team won the decision mainly by the persuasiveness of their oratory. Otherwise, the teams were very evenly matched, so excellent was the presentation by each side.

Bates Men Veterans

Two of the trio from Lewiston, Harold H. Walker and Fred T. Googins, were members of the team from Bates College that visited England and Scotland last summer, debating Oxford, Cambridge and other universities there. They later traveled over the Continent before returning home. Googins is also editor of the college newspaper in addition to many other scholastic activities.

The George Washington team, comprised of Williamson, Ohlander and Trimble, presented a formidable argument against the adoption of the measure, and were a close contender for the verdict. However, in the unanimous opinion of the judges, Ernest H. Van Fossan, Columbia, '13; Irving M. Tullar, Albion, '15 and, Karl D. Loos, Iowa, '11, the Bates team was the superior.

LEWIS SPEAKS BEFORE RADCLIFFE CLUB GUESTS

Other Prominent Speakers Address Convention Delegates

President Lewis was among the speakers at the luncheon given last Saturday by the Radcliffe Club of Washington in honor of the delegates attending the Radcliffe Conference. Delegates from all over the country attended the luncheon which was also addressed by President Ada Comstock, of Radcliffe, President Percival Hall, of Gallaudet, Chancellor Lucius Clark, of American University, Superintendent of Schools Frank W. Ballou, Dean Bernice Brown, of Radcliffe, and Mrs. Maude Wood Park, former President of the League of Women Voters. Mrs. Henry Grattan Doyle, former President of the Radcliffe Club of Washington, was the toastmistress.

TRACK NOTICE

All men interested in spring track are asked to meet in the gymnasium at 7.15 Wednesday, March 3.

BOLWELL WILL PICK THE WORLD'S WORST POETRY

"The World's Worst Poetry" will be the subject of a talk before the Enosinian Society next Tuesday night, given by Professor Bolwell. The event is looked forward to with much interest because of the unusual subject and the assurance which the name of Dr. Bolwell gives that it will be handled adequately. Students who are interested in finding out from a reliable source who the world's worst poet or poets are, will be welcome at the next meeting of the Society, Tuesday, March 8 at 8.30 p. m. at 1714 Summit Place, N. W.

PROM ENDS WEEK OF JUNIOR REVELS

Dance at Willard Proves Success as 300 Couples Fill Ballroom

FRAT TEA WAS "OPENER"

Other Events Are Junior Reception, Play, Debate and "Evening of Music"

Monday morning found the University slowly recovering from the strenuous social activities of Junior Week.

The Junior Prom, held on Friday night at the Willard Hotel was the culmination of seven days of teas and parties of all kinds, and was a fitting climax to the week of festivities. Dancing was enjoyed by the 300 couples present from ten until the wee small hours. The favors, always a subject of much advance speculation, this year proved to be silver link bracelets bearing the University seal.

Junior Week was ushered in Sunday, February 21, with the annual Interfraternity Rotating Tea which was voted a huge success by those who followed the "bread line" from house to house, beginning with soup at the S. A. E. house at 2.30 in the afternoon and ending with nuts at the Sigma Chi house at 7.00 o'clock that evening.

Convocation Monday

Monday's program was a crowded one. In the afternoon the Midwinter Convocation took place at Memorial Continental Hall, eighty students being graduated at that time. President Henry Suzzallo, of the University of Washington, made a thoughtful and inspiring last minute address, taking the place of President Aydelotte, of Swarthmore, who was kept away by illness. After the convocation the Junior Reception was held in Corcoran Hall, followed by dancing. That evening Carmela Ponselle the star of the "Evening of Music at Mount Vernon" delighted her audience with a program of eighteenth century music. With her on the program were the National String Quartet and the Tuesday Evening Music Class.

On Tuesday evening the men's debate team went down before the Bates College orators in a debate on the subject of the entrance of the United States into the World Court. The George Washington team, composed of Lyle Ohlander, W. F. Williamson and John T. Trimble, upheld the negative.

Wednesday evening the Junior Play, "Belinda" with Annabelle Lloyd in the stellar role was presented before a large and appreciative audience.

On Thursday the student body caught its breath and prepared for the big event of the week—the Junior Prom.

The final event of the week was the basketball game between the girls' teams of George Washington and the University of Pittsburgh.

DELTA THETA PHI HEARS CONG. YATES AT SMOKER

Songs, Dances, Jazz Fill Varied Program at Lafayette

Woodrow Wilson Senate, Delta Theta Phi law fraternity, entertained at a smoker held on Thursday, February 25, in the Gold Room of the Lafayette Hotel. This was the most successful social event so far of the fraternity's season. There were songs, speeches, solo dances, and piano music on the unusually varied program. A jazz orchestra played throughout the evening.

The guests of honor were Honorable Richard Yates, Congressman-at-large from Illinois, Professors Evans, Arnold, and Moll, fraternity members in the Law School faculty. Congressman Yates in his address emphasized the importance to young lawyers of making a thorough and exhaustive preparation of their case, regardless of the rank of the court before which they are to be heard. Professor Evans selected as a topic for his talk, "The Rights of Married Women in their Own and their Husbands' Property." The evening was concluded with a Buffet Supper served in the main dining salon. Many alumni and visiting members were present.

GIRL DEBATING TRIO WINS FROM STARS OF WEST VIRGINIA U.

Pending Child Labor Amendment Is Subject of Hotly Contested Debate

A. BARNETT W. VA. STAR

Direct Attack on Question Involved Gives G. W. U. Team Brilliant Win by 2-1 Vote

By RUTH GREENWOOD.

Clear thinking and sure reasoning on the part of the members of the girls' debating team of George Washington University won for them a brilliant victory over the girl forensic stars of the University of West Virginia in a debate held in Corcoran Hall last Saturday night. The George Washington team upheld the negative of the subject, "Resolved, That the Pending Child Labor Amendment Should Be Ratified."

The G. W. trio, composed of Irene Kushner, Willie Kennedy and Phoebe Morrison, presented a strong and united front to break down the arguments of Marion Gross, Mary Frances Brown, and Ada Barnett, of the University of West Virginia. Irene Kushner, with her rapid, forceful speech, Willie Kennedy, with her easy Southern wit, and Phoebe Morrison, with her infallible, legalistic reasoning, produced a combination which the visitors were not able to overcome.

The effectiveness of the Hatchette team lay in the continuity of their argument and direct attack on the question involved. They declared in the beginning that child labor laws were needed, but proposed that they be provided by the states rather than by the Federal Government. This they made the issue of debate, and by three definite points established their side of it. The points of the negative were that Federal control of child labor is not practical; that it is not in keeping with the essence of good government; and that it is opposed to the best interests of the child, the state, and the nation.

Prof. A. C. Arnold Presides.

The West Virginia team lacked the assured logic and calm deliberation of the local debaters. Notwithstanding this they were excellent speakers and possessed a pleasant poise on the platform. Their argument was divided into a history of child labor together with an exposure of existing conditions under it, the economic problem of child labor which makes it a national problem, and the influence of public opinion against it as caused by organized industry.

The meeting was opened by Professor A. C. Arnold, of the Law School, who, after a few preliminary remarks, presided.

UNIVERSITY BROADCASTS IN TWO RADIO PROGRAMS

Debating Team, Glee Club and String Quartet Furnish Chief Attractions

The University went on the air for the second time last week when it broadcast Saturday night over WRC.

"The Heidelberg Chorus" from the Prince of Pilsen, "The Land of the Sky-Blue Water," and "Old Man Noah," were sung by the men's Glee Club. This was followed by a violin solo by Herman Welhe.

Professor Fred A. Moss, of the psychology department, gave an address on "Do you know how to get along with people?" in which he gave the results of several of his tests.

The String Quartet, under the direction of Mr. Groppe, played "The Mill," "The Andante Cantabile," and the folk song, "Drink to Me Only With Thine Eyes." The quartet is composed of Ruth Seltzick, Inez Becker, Spencer Prentiss and Paul Groppe.

A debate gave a touch of the unusual to the program. The subject was, "Resolved, That the Pending Child Labor Amendment to the Constitution Be Adopted." W. F. Williamson supported the negative side and W. R. Ogg the affirmative.

"Above the tumult of strife which surrounded him in life and the exaggerated tradition and old wives' tales and petty gossip which blow past him as the years go on, his great figure towers with ever increasing magnificence." These words of President William Mather Lewis of George Washington University sounded the keynote of his address upholding the character of General George Washington over the radio from WCAP Monday night, February 22.

A short play appropriate to Washington's birthday, and a short program by the Glee Club concluded the three-quarters of an hour allotted to George Washington University.

"YOU AIN'T DONE RIGHT"

When we see the sad picture of lonely little Nell with all the world against her, on the stage, we weep in sympathy. When we read about the trials and tribulations of the unfortunate Nells in True Stories, we give to the Salvation Army. But when we live with as sad a little Nell as ever was, right in our midst, we simply fail to see her. Hence the cartoon on the front page of this issue. If we could banish the wicked and heartless villain who makes our Nell weep upon her Prexy's shoulder, and substitute the beautiful blond hero of Good Attendance, the look of dejection upon little Nell's face might disappear.

LET'S HAVE A NINE

Announcement of willingness to advocate help in a moderate financial way toward the equipping of a baseball team has come from the office of Dean Van Vleck, chairman of student activity finance. Efforts will be made to procure a small sum from the student activity fund to help in the financing of a team, provided enough students take an active interest in the sport.

All who are interested in the formation of a University baseball team or in forming class baseball teams for intra-mural competition should get together at the earliest possible time and elect managers. The managers should then go to coach Crum, give him a list of the men who are out for the team, and ask his assistance as a coach. The coach has intimated a willingness to help in any way possible to put one or more baseball teams on the diamond, provided enough students are interested and will come to him properly organized.

It is known that a very large sum of money cannot be expected from the student activity fund, as other activities have about exhausted this source of revenue. However, with Dean Van Vleck and others interested in a student baseball nine there is no reason why a successful team should not be placed in the field and aided in procuring the necessary equipment.

One or two other members of the faculty who have either played baseball in their college days or have engaged in the game in a semi-professional or professional way, are known to be willing to assist in coaching baseball. The students interested in forming either University or intra-mural baseball nines are therefore urged to meet as soon as possible and complete a skeleton organization as a basis for action.

TENNIS IS OUT

No appropriation for tennis this year is the edict issued by the powers that be. It does not seem possible that the University is going to discontinue this sport in which the school has been able to hold its own with any opponent it has ever played. The tennis team in the past has met and defeated Georgetown and Catholic Universities, Universities of Maryland, Pittsburgh and Pennsylvania, William and Mary College and many other colleges supposedly superior to George Washington in sports.

An appropriation of about two hundred dollars out of the forty-odd thousand dollars collected from the students for student activities is all that is necessary to carry out a tennis schedule. It would seem that the University could easily appropriate this small amount from the student activity fund for a sport in which over sixty per cent of the students have indicated their interest.

FELLOWSHIP IN EDUCATION

An urban University like George Washington is handicapped by the lack of fellowship which the dormitory college has to offer. Thus our students are to a large extent deprived of one of the most potent factors in education. Student activities help to fill this need, but through their very nature, are inadequate. In the classroom a certain number of facts may be absorbed but a broad, refining culture will come only as the result of associations with the alert and active minds of our fellows.

We would say to you of George Washington University, then: Make the most of what opportunities for fellowship are offered you. Study is good, but don't keep your nose buried in a book so that you miss intellectual contacts with other students. There are some few of us who have ideas. Expose yourself to them. Give your mind a chance to grow. If it doesn't get the habit during the educational era in your life, it never will. Mental growth is impossible except through contact with new ideas, and ideas traced to their original source arise in the minds of people. Thus education is inseparably allied with fellowship.

The Tau Alpha Omega Fraternity held its initiation Sunday, February 14, at the home of Al Musher, 2817 Connecticut Avenue. The men initiated were Phil Heyman, Al Lyman, Joe Rossman and Martin Shefferman.

The formal pledging ceremony of Zeta Tau Alpha was held Sunday afternoon at the home of Thelma Halley, 1290 Kalma Road. The neophytes were Alice Adams, Virginia Callahan, Frances James, Evelyn Pearson, and Frances Symonds.

Washington's birthday was celebrated by Phi Sigma Kappa with a dance at the chapter house. Decorations were in the appropriate colors of red, white and blue. Syncopation was furnished by Marceron's orchestra.

The George Washington Chapter of the Acacia Fraternity, together with the Columbia Chapter of Columbia University, were entertained by the Franklin Chapter of the University of Pennsylvania, at a joint banquet and initiation on February 20 at Philadelphia. The guests of honor included William S. Dye, Jr., Grand President, W. Elmer Ekblaw, Grand Secretary, W. R. Hockenberry, Grand Treasurer, G. McMorris, Venerable Dean of Columbia Chapter, and E. R. Helfrich, Venerable Dean of George Washington Chapter.

Gamma Beta Pi entertained at tea in their rooms Thursday in honor of Mrs. Charles A. Harris, National Vice President of Kappa Kappa Gamma, who was in Washington for several days attending the Deans of Women's Conference. Among the guests were Alice Watts Hostetler, Jane Ramey Knox and Hannah Hunt Stokes, all of Washington.

Announcement has been received of the marriage of Jane Dortch and Mr. Samuel Dent Gray, on February 25. Mrs. Gray was formerly a student at George Washington University, and is a member of Gamma Beta Pi.

Marguerite Daly entertained several members of Kappa Kappa Gamma and of Gamma Beta Pi at a luncheon at the Congressional Country Club last Friday in honor of Mrs. Charles A. Harris of Indianapolis, Indiana.

A shower for Elizabeth Cools, who is to be married on March 22, was given by Kappa Delta at the house last Saturday night. The pledges gave their annual pre-initiation entertainment the same evening.

A very enjoyable dance was held by the Tech Club of George Washington University in the Grace Dodge Hotel Tea Hut Friday evening, February 19. Lesieur's orchestra furnished syncopation.

Formal pledging exercises of Pi Beta Phi were held at the home of Ruth and Alice Williams last Saturday night.

Miss Marian Gilmer, president of Gamma Province of Pi Beta Phi, spent last week-end in Washington. She was a guest of the Pi Phi girls most of the time, attending pledging exercises Saturday night, a luncheon party in her honor at the Mayflower Sunday, a model chapter meeting Sunday afternoon and theatre party Sunday night.

Kappa Delta announces the initiation of Josephine Schaefer, Eleanor Dunne, and Helen Bell, held last Sunday. After the ceremony a delightful luncheon at the Lafayette Hotel was enjoyed by the old and new members of the sorority as well as eight alumnae, who assisted in the services.

A charming wedding took place Monday evening in Oakton, Va., when Reita Van der Vies became the bride of the Reverend Edward Latch. Marguerite Daly was the maid of honor, and Jean Jackson a bridesmaid. The bride was born in Holland, and following the Dutch custom all her attendants were dressed entirely in white, forming a delightful and unique picture. Mary Maxam sang several solos during the ceremony.

Reita entertained the members of her bridal party Sunday at her home in Oakton. She is a member of Gamma Beta Pi, and the groom belongs to Phi Kappa Sigma Fraternity.

Dr. May L. Keller, National Pan-Hellenic representative of Pi Beta Phi, was entertained at lunch in the rooms of the Pi Phi Chapter on Friday, February 26.

THOUSANDS ATTEND N. E. A. CONVENTION

Meetings Held Here Are Considered Most Successful in History

DISCUSS MANY QUESTIONS

College Groups Meet in University Buildings; Women Deans Hold Session

The most successful convention in its history was completed when the delegates of the National Education Association left Washington last Friday. It is estimated that twenty thousand delegates from all over the country came here to attend the meetings.

The college groups of the association held their meetings in the University on February 22, 23, 24 and 25. The National Society of College Teachers of Education met in the Auditorium of Corcoran Hall; the Educational Research Association and the National Society for the Study of Educational Sociology in the rooms at Corcoran Hall; the American International Council for the Education of Exceptional Children in Building 5; and the National Association of Deans of Women in Stockton Hall.

Varied Program

The National Society of College Teachers of Education discussed "Teacher Training" on Monday, "Research in Education" on Tuesday, and conducted a joint program with the Educational Research Association on Wednesday. W. W. Charters, of the University of Chicago, gave the report of the Committee on Teacher Training Curricula at the first meeting and M. E. Haggerty of the University of Minnesota, W. S. Monroe, of the University of Illinois, F. B. Knight, of the Iowa State University, J. F. Hosie, of Teachers College, Columbia University, S. L. Pressey, of Ohio State University and Dean Ruediger, of George Washington, spoke on subjects pertaining to the education of teachers.

The need of research in education was stressed at the second meeting. The program included speeches on Elementary Education, Secondary Education, Higher Education, and the development of ability in research. Curriculum making in moral education and the apportionment of State School funds were additional subjects for discussion.

Deans of Women Meet

The Wednesday program held jointly with the Educational Research Association discussed social problems in education. The Philippine school system and a study of the causes of elimination in a college of liberal arts for women were two of the most interesting of the subjects.

At the meeting of the National Association of Deans of Women, Professor L. B. Richardson, of Dartmouth, and Mrs. Lilli Skonoff, of the Norwegian Federation of University Women spoke. Professor Richardson pointed out that one of the graduation requirements at Dartmouth is a course in evolution. Mrs. Skonoff stressed the importance of travel and study for the broadening of viewpoints.

COLUMBIAN DEBATERS ARGUE TWO QUESTIONS

Next Meeting Will Decide Whether Younger Generation Is "Disgusting"

Two debates were held at the last meeting of the Columbian Debating Society Friday night, in Corcoran Hall, Room 15. "Resolved: That the negro has made the only considerable advancement in the South the last fifty years" was debated on the affirmative by Wroe Alderson and Jacob Rosenthal. The negative was defended by two native Southerners, W. Carelton and William Williamson.

H. Levine supported the question "That the exclusion of Countess Cathcart is justifiable" while M. Tendler took the negative. H. Levine was elected to membership.

The questions to be debated next Friday night are "Resolved: That a Department of Education with a Secretary in the cabinet should be established in the United States," and "Resolved: that the younger generation is disgusting." The first question will be handled by Miss Wright and Mr. Alderson of the affirmative and Mr. Simpson and Mr. Levine on the negative. Jacob Rosenthal and William Williamson will argue on the virtues of the younger generation.

The third quarter, the time in which the Pittsburgh sextet displayed renewed fighting spirit and determination, proved their lucky time, for at this stage they caged eleven additional points to that of four for the home team, making the count at the end of the third quarter 25-13.

The last quarter opened with the Hatchettes displaying their characteristic final comeback spirit; the Buff and Blue, holding their opponents scoreless, piled up five field goals in these last eight minutes and at the end of the tilt the home team with a fixed determination was fighting with mighty strength, showing remarkable speed and accuracy and strenuous opposition in the guard field and were on the very act of ringing up a basket that would tie the score, when play was called by the Pitt six asking for time-out. When play was again resumed a foul was called on Smoky City player and shortly after this the final time was called marking the defeat of the home girls by a small margin of two points.

One of the power amplifier stages of the world's first super-power transmitter

The World's Loudest Voice

On the rolling plains of South Schenectady, in several scattered buildings, is a vast laboratory for studying radio broadcasting problems. Gathered here are many kinds and sizes of transmitters, from the short-wave and low-power sets to the giant super-power unit with a 50- to 250-kilowatt voice.

Super-power and simultaneous broadcasting on several wave lengths from the same station are among the startling later-day developments in radio. And even with hundreds of broadcasting stations daily on the air throughout the land, these latest developments stand for still better service to millions of listeners.

Only five years old, yet radio broadcasting has developed from a laboratory experiment into a mighty industry. And alert, keen young men have reaped the rewards.

But history repeats itself. Other electrical developments will continue to appear. And it will be the college man, with broad vision and trained mind, who will be ready to serve and succeed.

From the studio of WGY in Schenectady, six miles from the developmental station, there may be controlled a great number of transmitters, one of which is the first super-power transmitter in the world.

WGY, together with its associates, KOA of Denver and KGO of Oakland, is the General Electric Company's assurance to the American public that radio broadcasting shall be maintained upon the highest standards.

WILLETT TAKES FIFTH IN MODIFIED MARATHON

G. W. Star is First District Man Home—Receives Silver Cup Trophy

Hurd Willett, captain of the 1925 cross country team of George Washington University, added to his many track accomplishments when he copied fifth in the ten mile modified marathon held Monday, February 22, under the auspices of the Aloysius Club. Because of being the first Washington man to finish Willett is entitled to possession of the silver cup for the ensuing year, upon which his name will be inscribed and of which the first local man to finish upon three different occasions becomes the permanent possessor.

The race was won by William Agee of the Emorywood A. C. of Baltimore in 54:48.1 when he bested Carney of the Shanahan A. C. of Philadelphia, when the latter missed the course. Albert Stenroos, Olympic Marathon champion, failed to accomplish what the fans expected of him and was unable to do better than third.

Shipley and Domigan of the 1925 cross country team, were also among the 36 starters and finished seventh and thirteenth, respectively. Shipley is not in school this semester and consequently represented the Aloysius club, while Domigan's South Atlantic registration is with the Washington Canoe Club, whom he was forced to represent. Schaub of the Aloysius club, was the only other Washington man to place among the first fifteen.

GIRLS END SEASON WITH TOUGH GAME

Swarthmore Considered Hardest Opponent Met This Season

PITT GAME UPSETS DOPE

Tilt Friday Night Is Expected To Be Close; Slight Margin On Enemies' Side

Buff and Blue fair basketballers will wind up their tilt list with the toughest game of the season when they toss up with Swarthmore College on the enemies floor at 8 o'clock next Friday. The Pennsylvania girls have never been downed by a local six and the Hopkinswomen, in spite of last week's close defeat at the hands of Pitt, have high hopes for coming out with the big end of the score.

The team, displaying the best shooting form for years, is in fine trim, and the girls are keyed to a high pitch even though court dope was a bit upset in last Saturday's fray. If the Smoky City contest had been won the odds would have been well on the side of the G. W. tossers.

Expect Close Game.

The close margin at the end of the Pitt game shows how well matched the teams were, so hopes of success with the Swarthmore sextet are well grounded. The Quaker City combination is considered practically on a par with the Swarthmoreans, so the 25-23 score on the local floor means a good deal in the coming contest and a fight to the finish is looked for.

The Pennsylvania six is one of the fastest combinations in the league. Their center is considered the best on the Coast set lists. She is one of the tallest girls ever seen on a basketball floor and the team is reported to back her well. Jean Jackson, local center, who has played a stellar game this season, is considered a good match for her, because of her quick, accurate work in the middle ring.

Extra practices are being rung in this week to keep the team well in trim. In spite of the long season no slack is evident. The Friday tilt will be the team's last appearance until fall as no post-season contests are scheduled.

All students having basketball equipment in the gymnasium lockers are urged to remove same immediately. The management will shortly make a check of equipment, and will not be responsible for personal equipment left in lockers.

GIRLS PLAN VARIED SPRING SPORT CARD

Plans Being Formulated For New Season Which Opened On March 1

SEVEN SPORTS LISTED

Track, Hockey, Swimming, Tennis and Bowling Will Hold Center of Stage in Spring

By PATTY ANN JAMISON

First signs of spring may be seen in the definite plans now being drawn up for various girls' sport activities to begin at the opening of the new season, during March. Basketball is now on the wane and track practice, bowling, swimming, hockey and later tennis will step into its place. Rifle and fencing will still occupy the center of the stage until later in the month when the new spring sports will get well on their feet.

An attempt is being made to obtain the Central High School Stadium for track practice and meets. Announcement will be released next week as to definite plans for the opening of the training season. No equipment will be ordered until the schedule is arranged, but it is still rumored that new apparatus will be imported as soon as a practice field is obtained. A jumping pit near the Gym, made last year, will be re-dug and new vaults will be erected, it is said.

Compete for Pan-Hellenic Cup

Sororities are priming for the opening of the bowling tournament to decide who will take the cup offered yearly by the Pan-Hellenic Council to the champion duck-pinners. At a meeting to be held very soon a tentative schedule will be drawn up, according to Alice Haines, manager of the event. Due to the hot competition for the athletic cup some competition has arisen as to the fairness of limiting bowling to sorority girls. A strong rumor heard on the Campus has it that an independent team made up of non-sorority women will challenge the Greek girls and will be included in the schedule to be arranged at this meeting.

The opening of the Y. W. pool at 614 E Street to G. W. swimmers on March 1 inaugurated the new string of sports. The pool will be used until the end of May, and Miss Hopkins will instruct classes on Mondays, 4:00-4:40; Wednesdays, 8:20-9:00; Thursdays, 4:00-4:40; and Saturdays, 1:20-2:00. Assistants are being tested now, according to Alice Ranck, manager, who is in charge of the organization of teams and classes. If enough worth-while material can be obtained, the Buff and Blue mermaids may organize a team to compete against various combinations in city aquatic clubs. Interclub meets will take place as soon as instruction begins.

Markswomen and Fencers Active

Spring hockey will open somewhat later, with the possibility of interschool games with Marjorie Webster and Holton Arms. The Hatchettes are out to work up a crack team to down these schools, who won by close margins in both fall sets. A tennis team that will challenge several nearby schools is also to be organized from among the high racqueters of the fall tournament. Work on the courts both in singles and doubles will be arranged for independent challengers. Another tournament will probably not be scheduled. The G. W. courts at Twenty-second and N Streets were entirely remade last year and will probably be put in good shape for spring workouts.

Rifle will, of course, hold the center of the stage through March, to the 27th, when the triangular match with Drexel and Maryland State will be staged. Fencing is continuing with some 15 girls attending regular workouts. A Varsity team to compete with other schools may be picked soon, it is rumored. Announcement has been made also that Professor Lonzelli, who trains the fair fencers, is planning an exhibition later this semester. Nothing definite has been released concerning his plans as yet.

SPAIN IS AGAIN SUBJECT OF FRIDAY CHAPEL TALK

Mrs. Charles Wood continued her Wednesday lectures on Spain at the chapel on Friday. The lantern slides served as an appropriate accompaniment to the talk. As usual when Mrs. Wood comes, the hall was crowded with enthusiastic listeners. Among the picturesque scenes spoken of were Seville, Granada, Cadiz, Gibraltar and the Alhambra. The historical interest that surrounded the scenes gave a colorful background to the lecture.

HATCHET QUINTET ENDS GOOD SEASON

Play in Best Form at Beginning And Ending of Schedule

WALLACE LEADS SCORERS

Avenge Defeat by West Virginia University by Winning Return Game Played Here

By GEORGE N. GARDNER

Starting the season very auspiciously with two wins in the first three starts, and winding up in a blaze of glory with overwhelming victories over West Virginia, Duke University and William and Mary College during the past few days, the George Washington basketball quint has just concluded a season that was in many respects eminently successful.

Although less than half of the games were won, five out of fourteen to be exact, teams that defeated G. W. were strong ones to whom it was no disgrace to lose. One defeat has been averaged already this season. West Virginia University bowed before the Buff and Blue basketballers in Washington on February 9, submitting to an adverse score of 39 to 16, after having defeated the Hatchettes on their own court 52 to 30.

Princeton, eastern intercollegiate champion of last year, was the first opponent of the Crum quintet, and the Tiger took the long end of the score. Next the Hatchettes met Johns Hopkins and Richmond University at the H Street gymnasium, defeating both teams decisively. Lafayette College won the next game by the narrow margin of two points. On the disastrous trip to West Virginia, the Crummen met West Virginia Wesleyan, West Virginia University, University of Pittsburgh and Geneva College, all of whom won their games. Back in Washington the G. W. basketballers dropped a game to Dickinson and lost the first C. U. game.

Avenge the W. Va. U. Defeat

West Virginia came down to the District expecting a repetition of their first victory, but Crum and Lemon had a surprise waiting for them, and they went back with the little end of the score. At Brookland, a few nights later, the Hatchettes did their best to avenge the first C. U. victory, but although the score was much closer, Coach Rice's sophomore-variety team was still too much for Wallace and Company.

The two other games on the schedule, with Duke University and William and Mary College were soon placed in the win column. Duke put up stiff opposition at first, but toward the end of the game the G. W. men launched a drive that gave them a ten point advantage by the final whistle. William and Mary threatened in the second half when their star forward Kahn shot six baskets in rapid succession, but the Hatchettes tightened their defense and started a drive for the basket that defeated the Williamsburg quint.

Several stellar basketballers have been developed during the season. Captain Wallace led in basket shooting, 137 points being credited to him. Kendall was second with 79 points, and he played a good defensive game at guard and center as well during the whole season. Wheeler, Allhouse, Brown and Banton contributed substantially to the total score column of the Buff and Blue. Only two players, Wallace and Kendall, saw service in every game played. Allhouse, Brown and Banton played in all but one, and Wheeler participated in twelve out of fourteen.

Wallace Is Best Shot

The student body has been taking an increased interest in basketball this season, and at several of the games every available seat and all standing room was taken. Coaches Crum and Lemon and Manager Irvin "Dan" McGrew deserve a great deal of commendation for their unceasing efforts to produce a team worthy of bearing the Buff and Blue for George Washington University.

SPLINTERS FROM SPORTDOM

More About Baseball

An Interesting Interview

Track Practice to Start

By DOMY DOMIGAN

As a rule, the men seem to monopolize the publicity of the sport page while the women predominate in the society section. But in checking over the columns of the Hatchet, it would appear that the men have got more than their share of publicity in both. As far as percentage goes, the women's basketball team has had a better season than the men's and the records of the two rifle teams are comparable. But since "modest man" is rather hesitant to cover a woman's athletic encounter, it seems that the matter of such publicity is entirely up to the co-ed.

Last year we were led to believe that George Washington would be represented by a baseball team this year but so far as is known, no such plans have been laid nor any appropriation made to finance the sport from a University standpoint. At this late date, it would be a difficult matter to arrange a satisfactory schedule and it seems that any interest in the sport must again be maintained on the intra-mural basis. Whatever the athletic program is for next year, we wish that it would be definitely decided in order that those in charge may more effectively work towards a definite end.

Being scarce of news this week, I decided that an interview might help matters a little so dropped around to the gym to see Maud. As it happened, he wasn't in so I tried the janitor but all that he would tell me was not to spit on the floor. I wandered around with my memo book under my arm and finally came upon the occupant of a desk in one of the buildings marked "Information." Deciding to make the individual in charge the subject of my interview, I began:

"Do you know anything interesting that has happened?"

"I won 38 cents at poker last night."

"No, no. I mean in sports."

"Tiger Flowers beat Harry Greb the other night."

"I mean around G. W."

"The basketball season is over."

"What about interfraternity bowling?"

"If they knock down all ten pins, it's a strike."

"What about rifle?"

"If you don't hold one right, it'll kick."

"And swimming—we used to have a swimming team."

"The river's frozen over."

"But they don't swim in the river."

"If they don't they'll drown."

"How do you think alcoholic beverages affect the athlete?"

"They make him drunk."

"And with this information, I concluded my interview. Those not in the newspaper game will of course be surprised to know that it takes this long to reach the point but one must be diplomatic you know, especially when interviewing one apt to be sensitive."

Coach Probeby of the track team announces that the wooden track will be installed in the gym next week and practice sessions will be held nightly at seven o'clock under his supervision. The Aloysius club is also starting a series of races at the Plaza Grounds to be held every Sunday for the next four weeks. Instead of confining the competition to the five mile event as previously, a number of races representing all the distances will be held. All track candidates are urged to take advantage of this opportunity for training and be on hand for their event next Sunday morning by eleven o'clock. Further information can be secured from the local papers.

LEAGUE 2 FRATERNITIES WILL BOWL MARCH 6TH

Five Fraternities in Second Group to Battle For Honor of Meeting Kappa Sigma

Fraternity bowlers in League 2 will meet to decide the championship of that division Saturday evening, March 6, at the Convention Hall bowling alleys. The winners of League 2 will meet Kappa Sigma, champions of League 1, at a later date, when the fraternity championship of G. W. U. will be at stake.

Several close contests developed in the first round of bowling, notably the Sigma Nu-Sigma Chi match which was won by Sigma Nu with only a two-point margin. Especially good scores were made in the play-off of the tie between Kappa Sigma and Sigma Chi, which was the result of the first night of bowling, February 20. In the deciding match February 22, Kappa Sigma won from Sigma Chi 553 to 547.

The League 2 schedule which will be played off Saturday night, March 6, follows:

DEANS OF WOMEN ARE ENTERTAINED AT LUNCHEON

Prominent Guests From Many Colleges Come Here For Meetings of N. E. A.

Dean Florence Purlington of Mt. Holyoke, President of the National Educational Association, presided at the luncheon, which was held in Corcoran Hall on Thursday, February 25. About 220 of the deans and their guests were present.

Many women who are prominent in educational work in all parts of the country attended the luncheon. At the speakers table were Dean Dorothy Stimson of Goucher, President elect, Dean Georgia L. White of Cornell, President and Mrs. Lewis, Dean Mary Ross Potter of Northwestern, Dean Thyra W. Amos of the University of Pittsburgh, Dean Anna L. Rose of George Washington, Mrs. Skonhott, and Miss Janet McKellas, National Girls' Campfire Secretary.

After the luncheon, which was served by girls from the George Washington sororities, a meeting of the deans was held in Stockton Hall. At this meeting Professor Richardson of Dartmouth, and Mrs. Skonhott were the speakers. Mrs. Skonhott spoke on "International Education."

This session of the Deans of Women Conference was the largest ever held. There were 341 registered members.

GERMAN CONCERT GIVEN BY DER DEUTSCHE VEREIN

Der Deutsche Verein concert will be given Friday, March 5 at 8.30 in Corcoran Hall. As one of the aims of the affair is to initiate a drive for new members, no admission charge will be levied, but the concert will be thrown open to all students of the University and their friends.

Among numbers already featured on the program are several piano solos by Miss Madeline Von Unschuld-Lazard, vocal solos by Mr. Mischa Kossow and Miss Rae Burns, and several selections by Professor Paul Gropp's orchestra. With the exception of the Volga Boatman's Song, which will be sung by Mr. Krossow, the entertainment will consist entirely of German music.

GRILS' DEBATING TRIO WINS FROM W. VA. U.

remarks, introduced Marion Gross, first speaker for the affirmative. She detailed the cruelties of child labor as found in agriculture, manufacturing and the newspaper business. "We must safeguard the welfare of our children," she said. "To do this, some states have moved in one direction, some states have moved in another, and some have not moved at all. State legislation has failed. The Federal Government must act."

Irene Kushner, first speaker for the negative, stated the position of her team in conceding that child labor should be regulated, but that it should be regulated by the states. She said that Federal control would not be practical, because the law would require local execution that the Federal Government could not give.

The transportation of children from one state to another and the maintenance of lobby legislation, both of which make the child labor problem an economic one to be settled nationally, was the chief point made by Mary Frances Brown of the affirmative. She ended her speech with an appeal for the protection of infant children whom she said were no less important than infant industries.

22 States Against Amendment.

"As the people of twenty-two states have already rejected the proposed amendment," said Willie Kennedy, second speaker for George Washington, "it seems absurd to consider Federal control of child labor."

Probably the best speaker representing the West Virginia team was Ada Barnett. Her words were impulsive, but not rash. She introduced a new thought when she said that the George Washington team had been advocating state control without showing how the states could handle the situation. Too much propaganda brought about by organized industry was her explanation for the failure of the amendment.

Phoebe Morrison, last speaker for Buff and Blue, disapproved the statement that "all men are born equal." She further said that child subsidies were not a good thing as they encouraged lack of industry. "Because state and social interests have been damaged by this amendment and because the Federal Government has too much to do already," she concluded, "the negative side contends that the pending law would not benefit the country." The judges, J. P. Ault, G. K. Bowden, and W. H. Bonnevill, rendered a 2-1 decision in favor of George Washington.

"ROYAL CITIES," SUBJECT

An illustrated talk on the "Royal Cities of Spain" was given by Mrs. Charles Wood, at Chapel, Wednesday, February 24. The pictures were beautiful as well as interesting. The series dated from the first cities on the Iberian Peninsula, up to Madrid, the Royal City of the twentieth century.

Hatchet Reviews of Current Shows

By JACK MILLIGAN

POLIT'S

As exclusively predicted in these columns in 1915, "The Student Prince" is now in its third week at Polit's.

This long-range prophecy isn't as far-fetched as it appears; anyone who has seen the production will admit that it was a pretty safe conclusion.

A description of "The Student Prince" is somewhat superfluous at this late date, but we are willing to be superfluous and say that it is a charming, romantic, and robust operetta. The cast appearing locally is fair, featuring Leonard Ceiley and a couple of other singers.

Last week we promised to meet you in Child's after Friday night's performance. We regret that we were unable to keep the engagement, but promise to see you at the so-called restaurant next Friday night. We will be there from 11.30 until 1, sitting at the table with the cloth and finger-bowls.

PALACE

Paramount's contribution to the current collection of war films is "Behind the Front," now playing at the Palace. However, instead of being a blood-and-thunder affair, this picture makes an attempt to show the bright side of the recent embargo.

Judging from "Havoc," "The Big Parade," "The Lost Battalion" and other recent war movies, La Belle France is a country composed of (1) slimy, oily mud, and (2) bar maids with a come-hither look. All of which is entirely irrelevant to what I am trying to write, for "Behind the Front" is a rip-roaring comedy, with its principal players, Wallace Beery and Raymond Hatton, furnishing many laughs. As it is against my scruples to write a review that is wholly constructive (sic), I will ease my conscience by admitting that a few of the gags were a trifle shopworn.

Next on the Palace program comes a Mother Goose film, which is just the variety of picture that Lieut. Mina and her cohorts would foist on us. Then there is also an "Our Gang" comedy, which reveals Farina sans his, or her, garments, that is, most of them, the Pathe News, and Tom Gannon's music, which will make you want to tear out the seats and start dancing.

I call this a good program. JOE.

RIALTO

This week's feature at the Rialto is "Stella Maris," the picture listed by some critic or other as the third best photoplay of the month. His eyesight was bad, however.

"Stella Maris" is a tale of sacrifice and service, and proves conclusively that we love best who sacrifice for others—which may or may not be true. The two principal roles are those of Stella Maris, a rich invalid, and one Blake, a charity ward. Both parts are played by Miss Mary Philbin, who is very convincing in the latter role—almost too much so.

Briefly, Stella Maris is loved by Risca, M. E., and another hero. Risca has a wife whom no one can understand. The difficulty of understanding her is augmented when she tortures her ward, for which humane act she is imprisoned. Then Stella falls in love with Risca, but is disillusioned by his wife, who returns from the house-gown in the nick of time. To end things nicely, Risca kills his wife and himself, and Stella transfers her affections to the other hero.

The added attractions include a pair of youngsters who Charleston (God bless our country), Aesop's Fables and the International News. To say nothing of Guterson's music. ELBERT.

METROPOLITAN

Miss Colleen Moore, the familiar Cinderella theme, a few poor subtitles, a lot of comedy, and a beautiful fashion revue are the principal ingredients of "Irene," the feature picture at the Metropolitan this week.

Adapted from the musical comedy by the same name, "Irene" is a light little picture, based on sure-fire material. It will please the morons for several reasons, which follow. It is the story of a winsome girl of poor Irish parentage, who becomes the wife of a very rich aristocrat, which is a theme that has never failed to bring in the shekels. It tickles the average person's vanity by absurdly burlesquing society people at one point. And it has the toothsome Miss Moore as a star.

The fashion revue sequence is laid in a garden, where several delectable models show next season's styles. It is filmed in natural colors. Or what one is told are natural colors. Other attractions in the film are Charlie Murray, Kate Price, Betty Francisco, Lloyd Hughes, Eva Novak and Ida Darling.

The rest of the bill includes a news reel, Breeskin's music, and an Aesop's Fable, which presents an uproarious travesty on Spain's jolly old bull-fights.

COLUMBIA

If your flapper friend craves jazz entertainment, don't take her to see "The Wanderer" at the Columbia this week. For it is a moving tale of the tragedy of youth and disillusionment, based on the New Testament parable of the prodigal son. Simple in theme, the picture maintains a dignity of tone, beauty of expression, and depth of truth that make the Scriptural narrative seem vital, even today.

The settings for the story are a dream of beauty come true. In these lovely surroundings move a mob of actors, who occasionally indulge in a trifling Bacchanalian revel. Earl Carroll has nothing on these Babylonian men-about-town. Nothing missing but the bath-tub, but then our modern plumbing is not artistic enough to fit in anyway.

The cast is excellent, featuring William Collier, Jr., who plays the exacting title role sensitively and well, and Greta Nissen, the immigrant peril. The laurels go to the old-timers, however; Tyrone Power, Kathryn Williams, Wallace Beery, and Ernest Torrence. It is bits of acting like theirs that save the faded reviewer from the mad-house.

An Al St. John comedy, International News, and an excellent overture, "Stradella," complete the bill. Willie Jacobs is leading the Columbia orchestra during the absence of his chief, Leon Brusiloff, who is temporarily disabled, due to the fact that he is honeymooning.

CAMPUS CRITIQUES

After reviewing three Christ-plays for the student paper of my distinguished alma mater, George Washington University, I was warned that I would be forcibly ejected if I appeared at any more of their shows. So last night I donned my yellow slicker, strung my frat pins across my vest and ventured forth to the Junior play, for I have a sneaking love of danger.

The play was so inane in spots that several times I almost swallowed my plug of chewing tobacco. The plot deals with an English gentleman who disagrees with his wife. He slams the door, walks out, and is gone for 18 years. At the expiration of that period, he and the wife meet again, and she does not recognize him, as he has shaved off his beard. They fall in love again, neither knowing who the other is.

A great deal of credit is due the actors in the play, who performed splendidly.

Miss Annabelle Lloyd, a delectable co-ed, plays the part of the temporary widow, who produces an unknown effect on Smith W. Brookhart, Jr., who plays the absent-minded husband. Two character parts, played by Loren Disney and Vincent Stubbs, are the only justification for calling the play a comedy, if one does not count the unconscious humor.

ALUMNI TAKE TEST OF SOCIAL INTELLIGENCE

Results Compare Favorably With Big Business Men, According to Dr. Moss

The alumni came out in full force for the luncheon held February 27. In fact it was necessary to put up an extra table to accommodate the crowd. In the absence of Gilbert L. Hall, Dr. Frank A. Hornaday, vice president of the association, presided.

Dr. Fred A. Moss, of the psychology department, talked on the social intelligence test and the results obtained from Harvard and Columbia, and gave the test to those present. The middle score for the alumni was between 125 and 130. The median of the test given to the business managers of many of the large concerns throughout the United States, was 121 1/2, indicating that we "are a right intelligent group," to quote Dr. Moss. The average of G. W. freshmen is around 85 and the upper class average about 113.
